

CASE STUDY

Subhas had cabled Akbar Shah to meet him at Calcutta. Akbar Shah was a co-worker in the freedom struggle against British Raj. He was to help in Subhas's escape. Akbar Shah came to Calcutta. He was introduced to Sisir. Together they went to a shop in Central Calcutta where they purchased baggy shalwars and a black fez for Subhas's disguise. Sisir then went to a printer's shop. He ordered a set of calling cards which read: 'Muhammad Ziauddin, Travelling Inspector, the Empire of India Life Insurance Co. Ltd.' This was the false identity with which Subhas was to travel.
